RACHEL ROSSOS

short biography

Singer, songwriter, and producer Rachel Rossos studied music at Columbia University with composers Tristan Murail and Sebastian Currier before releasing her debut solo album, Rated R, in 2004... long before Rihanna had the same idea.

Rachel has had an orchestration performed by conductor Alondra de la Parra, worked with Skitch Henderson and The New York Pops, and sung at venues ranging from the Knitting Factory to Lincoln Center. As an arts administrator, she has worked with such musicians as Edgar Meyer, William Bolcom, and Nadja Salerno-Sonnenberg in the role of Director of Development and Marketing for San Francisco's New Century Chamber Orchestra. She currently serves as the New York Philharmonic's Director of Relationship Marketing.
